Mr A M aged 50 yrs consulted me with numbness of right leg with pain in ankle joint. The pain was described as burning. It was aggravated by walking, after a bath and bending forward. It was better by warm application. He also complained of acidity and was very thirsty. He showed great concern about the numbness.

I took the following rubrics

Numbness, leg

Joints, ankle

Aggravated walking after

Burnt pain as if

Aggravated bathing and washing

Aggravated bending forward

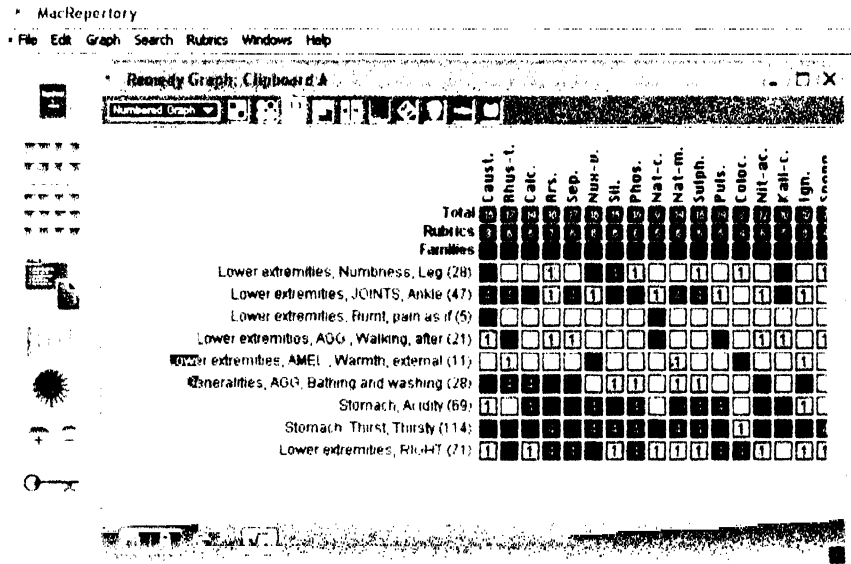

Stomach, acidity

Stomach, thirsty

Right side

The case was repertorised using BCCR

Causticum was clearly indicated which was given in 0/1, 4 times daily. The patient was given medicine for 2 weeks but was asked to report after a week. He telephoned after a week to say that numbness and pain are 80% better. He was advised to continue the medicine. He came after finishing the medicine with complete relief and brought his wife for treatment.
